English opening reading cards

Teacher preparation sheet - keep this page; cut only the card pages.

Start with one small focus

These cards reuse the English v0.1 sequence and activity examples approved by the contracted educator, as reported by the Product Owner. This is a new resource proof, not a new curriculum or a claim that the printed resources have already been educator-reviewed.

Choose the pages you need

Page 2: two copies each of s, a, t, p, i, n for matching and building. Introduce only the relationships needed for the selected activity.
Page 3: P1 reading words: at, sat, pat, tap, plus extra sat/tap models.
Page 4: P2 reading words: it, in, an, pin, pan, sit, tip, plus extra pan/pin models.
Page 5: teacher-read labels pan, cup and sun. Do not treat these as a P1/P2 independent-reading list: cup and sun need later taught patterns.

Print, cut and reuse

Use A4 paper, single-sided, at 100% / actual size. Plain paper is enough; card is optional. An adult cuts along the borders before the activity. Keep the cut faces plain and the same colour. Put labels or set codes on the storage envelope, not beside the answer. No laminator, purchased kit, small magnets or loose decorations are needed.

Add a few hand-drawn pictures

Prepare separate, unlabelled pictures of a pan, cup, sun, sock, pen and pin as needed. Pictures are not included in this reading-card proof. Use a picture of a pin, never a sharp pin. Keep answer pictures separate when inviting print-first reading. Adult-read stories and listening games can use richer spoken words; that is not independent word reading.

Keep the teaching distinctions

Use with EN-N01/N02, EN-L01/L02 and EN-U01 as relevant. Oral sound games need no letter cards. A child can match, point or build without handwriting. These printed shapes are not a stroke guide: tracing/copying still uses an educator-confirmed formation model. EN-U02 mat/map and sentence resources are outside this first P1/P2 batch.

Source guides and next check

Exact teaching steps and prerequisites remain in English Starter Activities v0.1 and English Teaching Sequence & Word Bank v0.1. Check the actual printed cards for clarity and familiarity before classroom use. No new attainment target, classroom pilot or real-child data collection is authorised by this proof.
