Pictures and little messages

English starter resources / teacher preparation sheet

10 / Resource proof v0.1 / 27 October 2026

Keep a few useful cards beside the activity guide. Pick one familiar focus, talk about its meaning and invite a little play. You do not need to print the whole pack.

2	Six unlabelled pictures: pan, cup, sun, sock, pen and pin. Cut them apart; use only the pictures the chosen game needs.
3	Mat and map: two pictures, plus two plain word cards for each. Use after their sounds and meanings are familiar.
4	Build mat or map: two copies each of m, a, t and p. These extend, rather than replace, opening pack 07.
5	Optional sentence A: Sam sat. Two full strips and two sets of word/full-stop cards.
6	Optional sentence B: Sam can sit. Two full strips and two sets of word/full-stop cards.

Choose the pictures for your game

Story bag: pan and cup; you read their labels from pack 07.
Sound picnic: sun and sock, then pan and pen. Name the pictures aloud; these whole words are not a first independent-reading list.
Puppet game: use the pan picture; no printed letters are needed.
Letter game: sun picture with the known s card and adult-read sun label.
Word building: pan and pin, after p, short a, short i and n are taught.

Prepare once, use again

Print selected pages on A4, single-sided, at 100% / actual size. An adult cuts along the borders. Keep cut faces plain, with no matching colours or labels added to the pictures. Ordinary paper is fine; card and lamination are optional.

> A picture of a pin, never a real sharp pin. Keep pan and cup as pictures too: no hot, heavy or breakable objects. For print-first reading, put the answer pictures aside until the child has tried the word.

The word bank and teaching routes are unchanged. These are new resource proofs, not handwriting models, an audio model, a full-alphabet kit or a classroom trial. Before tracing or copying, use an educator-confirmed formation model. Draw a matching scene or act out a sentence; children may arrange cards, draw or ask you to write.

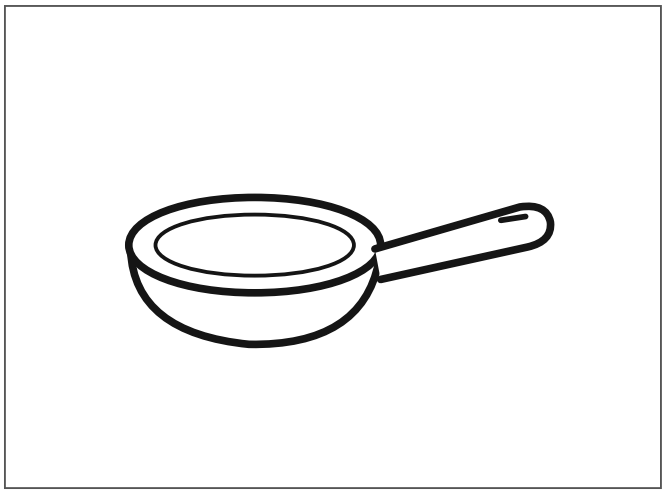
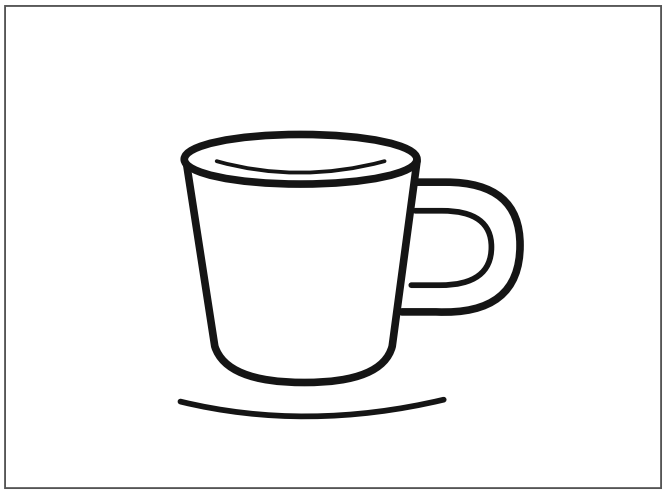
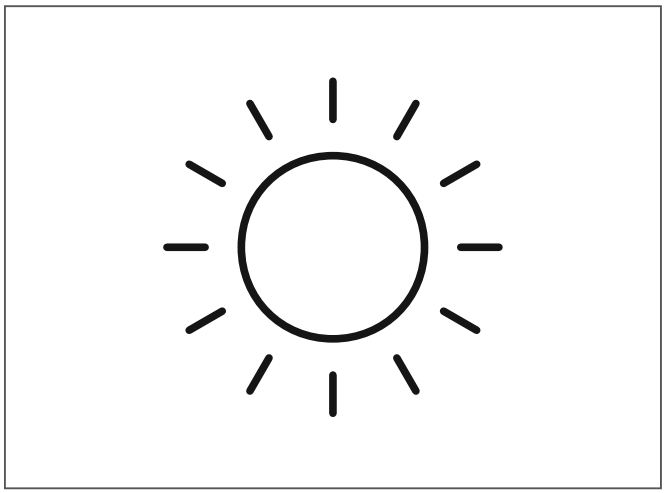
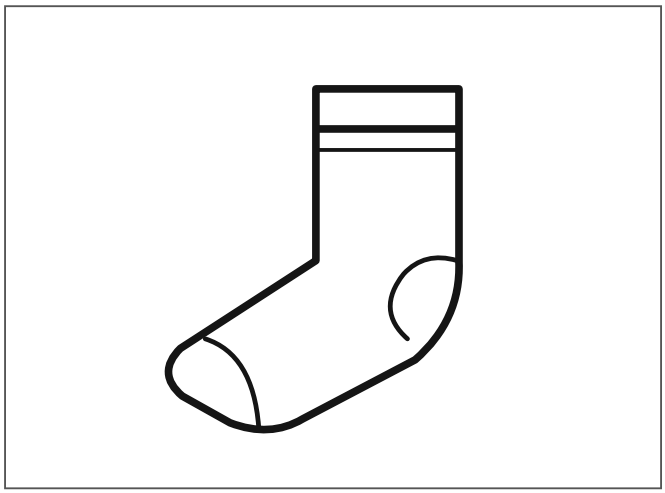
Pictures for our games

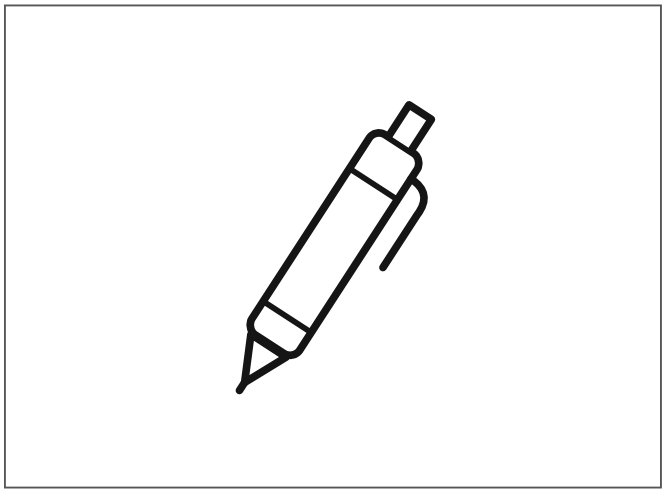
Cut out each picture. Keep words on separate cards.

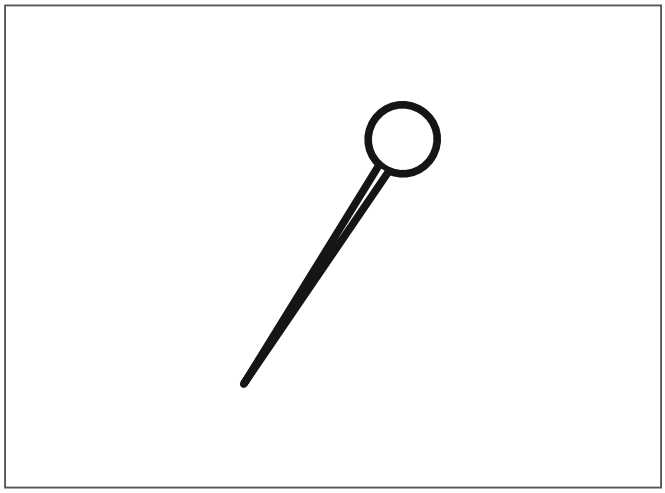












Teacher key before cutting: top row pan / cup; middle row sun / sock; bottom row pen / pin. The pin picture shows a straight, round-headed pin; the pen has a barrel, clip and writing tip.

Use the picture of the pin only. Names in a listening game are not automatically words for independent reading.

A word for my picture

For the little message book: mat or map, one word at a time.

Use after m, short a, t and p have been introduced as needed, and both meanings are familiar. This is the existing later word route, not an opening-set reading expectation.

Top left: a woven mat. Top right: a folded map. Talk about the chosen picture, then invite a drawing. Later, try the word with the picture put aside. Do not read map as mat by guessing from the picture.

Letters for mat and map

Use only the sound–letter relationships already introduced.

m	a
t	p
m	a
t	p

One little change

Build m + a + t for mat, or m + a + p for map. Say the sounds and blend the whole word. Explain the meaning before asking the child to read it.

These are printed letter cards, not stroke-direction guides. A child can arrange cards without handwriting. Keep pack 07 for the earlier s, a, t, p, i, n games.

A little message: Sam sat.

Optional extension / choose this route only when its prerequisites are familiar.

Introduce s, short a, m and t, capital S, the pretend name Sam, and the meaning of sat. Show spaces and the full stop. This tells about something that happened; it is not an instruction to sit.

Sam sat.

Sam sat.

Keep one whole strip as a model. Cut the cards below; the full-stop card is intentionally large.

Sam	sat	.
Sam	sat	.

Give the message a meaning

Draw pretend Sam sitting or act out what happened. Read the message together. Invite arranging, drawing or writing with suitable support. Do not introduce the next sentence just to finish the page.

Use a pretend character, not a real child's identity. Copying, remembering a picture and independently reading are different. Handwriting is optional.

A little message: Sam can sit.

Optional later extension / keep separate from the first sentence.

Use after s, short a, m, c as /k/, n, short i and t are taught, with capital S familiar. Explain can as “is able to”. Reading Sam sat. does not prove that this new message is understood.

Sam can sit.

Sam can sit.

Arrange the words in order. Leave spaces and place the full stop at the end.

Sam	can	sit	.
Sam	can	sit	.

Draw or act out the meaning with pretend Sam. Use cards, drawing or adult writing as comfortable. Do not replace the word can with a tin-can picture: that would teach a different meaning.
